As a musical amateur, I beg leave to express

ny admiration of the performances of Mr. Schie-

MACHER, upon the violin. "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country;" and this is the truth, not of seers only, but of merit generally. Every community is slow to appreciate, and still slower to acknowledge the merits of its own artists, and proud to bestow their praises

and pationage upon strangers of inferior genius and attainments. I was forcibly impressed with this idea on hearing Mr. Schiermachen and Mr.

WAMELINE perform in private, a few days since the former upon the violin and the latter on the piano. Mr. Wamelink's reputation as a thorough master of the key board and a performer of the highest artistic accomplishments, is well estab-

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 12, 1852. Rafus King, Wm. H. Watson & John. S. Fillmor. PROPRIETORS.

FORD THE PARE AND FIRM O RUFUS KING & CO.

From our New York Correspondent. NEW YORK, Monday, March 1st. We are here, as you are in Milwaukee, hard at work for and against the Maine Liquor Law.— The demonstration made by its opponents at Tripler Hell, last week, tho' numerously attended, must be looked upon as a failure; seeing that no prominent persons took part in the deliberations, and no names of general influence appear among its managers. Mr. Robt. Morris, once Mayor of this City, is of but little account, and the speakers were even of less. Yet there is, assuredly, among quiet, sober, law-observing citizens, very serious objection to the principle alike and to the details of such a law-as interfering intolerably with private rights and private life and personal independence. Of the wasting, wide-wasting evil of habitual intemperance, there cannot be two opinions, and it is consequently. a fatal mistake, that made by the Tripler Hall meeting, of denying that a large amount—the largest from any single cause, I do not doubtof crime, is traceable to the abuse of liquors.-That meeting asserts that more crime is prevalent in Mohammedan countries, where intemper ance in drink is all-but unknown, than in our own land - taking no account of our higher christian civilization, and of their lack of it, and thas almost claiming for intemperance a conservative virtue. Habits of intexication are, beyoud all peradventure, productive of every crime -they annihilate self-respect, the sense of shame, all mutual affection, until the inebriate becomes a mere sensual, unreflecting brute-incapable of virtue, or honorable ambition, or the instincts of family, or friendship. Degradation, poverty, crime, are the offsprings of the still! seems to me incontrovertible. Yet is it clear that if all alcoholic drinks could be abolished, without shaking the fabric of society, substitutes in the shape of Opium, or something worse, would not be found? Certainly, I agree that some hazard-even much hazard-may and should be incurred to cradicate acknowledged evil; but even acknowledged evil may be more tolerable or less intolerable, than evils of which the extent and nature cannot be foreseen, to result from efforts at Reform. I do not believe it possible, in this City of New York, to execute any such law as that of Maine; and think it entirely a non sequitur to argue that, because it is executed in Maine, of homogeneous and comparatively sparse population, the same success would attend it, in dense and motley population, fermenting with all the passions and most of the vices of every clime and every race, and pressed together within are, every day, by the narrowest circumstances.

The anti-gambling laws, aimed at a less general and less dangerous vice-dangerous as gambling is-are not executed. How then, can it be hoped that the Maine Law, striking at hundred select whether strikes at units, can be carried and effect? A law inoperative, is only one of Wisconsin, vs. Wm. A. Ratcliffo, and proc less mischierous than a law violated. In both instances, or in either instance, the authors of Lora, as such, lesss its presign, which, in a country like ours, is half its power. Yet most surrely like ours, is half its power. Yet most whatever can check it, without violating long-settled convictions of personal right, of self-decimal conventions of personal where the other strikes at units, can be carried into effect? A law inoperative, is only one de-

the bounds, and straitened, as thousands of them

rapt mismanagement than in this, our great city in its municipal affairs. We raise more than three millions of taxes every year, of which it is within bounds to say that one-fifth, at least, is plundered, in one way or another, and never enures to the public benefit. And this is true, let what party may be in power. It seems to be the vice of the system. We have tried revised and amended, and re-revised Charters, and have ex hausted ingenuity in devising limitations and restrictions, but all in vain. The leak increases from year to year-the plunder goes on-men who go into the Corporation not worth a sixpence, come out, after a few years' service, quite easy in their circumstances, and yet honestly they cannot make a penny. I dwell upon this upon its new Charter, and no one thing, you may be assured, will be so conducive to your City's prosperity, as to pay vigilant attention to the character and qualifications of candidates for City offices. Resist the beginning of evil, before yet for secresy, entered into. Look to private characters, rather than to politics; to personal honesty, rather than to Cassism, or Fillmoreism, or Buchananism, or to Scottism. Take for the public the men you would trust in your private affairs, and when you have elected such men, take care that the utmost publicity be given to all their acts, votes, contracts, and expenditures, on public account. MILWAUKER, as I can bear witness, has a touch of New York go-aheadness, in opening streets, filling up marshes, and levying taxes. Deware of following into the reckless ness of our General City expenditures.

Ponk Business of Cuicago.—The number of Hogs packed in this city, during the jest season, reaches 21000, the average weight being about 251 pounds, and the total weight, 5,700,000 pounds. The number of barrels on hand at the close operations, will not be less than 17,060.—Chicago

Milwaukce approaches nearer to Chicago, i. the amount of Pork packed during the past winter, than we had anticipated. The quantity in store here, at the close of the serson, will not vary much from 13,000 bbls. Last year the amount was about 2500 bbls; the business having quadruplad during the past season, and the quality of the Pork being very superior. The amount packed in Chicago hast year was 13,000 bbls, this year 17,000; a gain of 25 per cent.

ICE IN THE LAKE .- The Like presents a solid field of ice as far as the eye can reach. If it is as thick in other parts of the lake as hereabout, it will be a serious hindrance the early optning of navigation. Chicago Tribune, Tuesday. Here too the fields of ice, driven over to this shore by the Easterly winds of the last week, ex. tend out five or six miles, blocking up the port and obstructing navigation along the Western Coast of Lake Michigan. This is the first time, since our residence in Wisconsin, that we have seen the Lake wear the fetters of the Frost-King. so late in the season, or for so long a period.

PENNSTLVANIA LOCO FOCO CONVENTION .- Thi body met at Harrisburgh on the 4th instant. A ballot taken to test the sense of the Convention as to Presidential candidates, resulted thus: BUCHANAN,

Cass, Walker, Holston,

The Buchanan men, being largely in the as-cendancy, determined to have things their own way. They accordingly rejected a proposition, to refer the election of Delegates to the Bultimore Convention, to the several Congressional Districts and resolved to appoint them all themselves. The friends of Gen. Cass filed an indignant protest against the "snap judgment."

THE Case of RATOLIFFE.—The indignation niversally felt in our city at the verdict of the fury, acquitting the murderer, RADCLIFFE, con- Trial of Wm. Ratcliffe for the Murder inued to ferment all day yesterday, and rose, a times, to a pitch that threatened mischief. To wards noon a handbill appeared, inviting a publie meeting, in front of the City Hotel, at 2 o'clock P. M., to review the proceedings on the trial.-Some apprehension was felt that the meeting might result in violence; there having been a good deal of talk about the streets, of trying Lynch Law. Happily wiser counsels prevailed and our city was spared the di-grace of such an exhibition. At the hour named, some three or four hundred persons organized a meetingadopted a series of resolutions strongly censur ing the Jury, and then quietly adjourned. The esolutions of the meeting are herewith annexed

3. Resolved, That the Jury sitting on this case, in rendering a verdice of "Not Guilty," have not given a verdict in accordance with the law and the facts proved in this case, and we deem it due to ourselves, and to our character at home and haroad, to make this public declaration of dissistinguation with their verdict.

4. Resolved, That we hold sacred the right of trial by jury, and that in all ordinary cases we should silently acquiesce in the decision of a jury which we regarded wrong, but in a case involving so deeply our credit, our reputation, our character, our interests, our rights, and our lives, we feel justified and required to give public and solemn expression to the truth, that this verdict meets with our unqualified cambemnation.

BEFORE JUDGE HUBBELL. District Attorney Butler and E. G. Ryan for the State J. E. Arnold and A. D. Smith for Prisoner. SPEECH OF MR. SMITH-CONTINUED. MONDAY, March S.

But you search in vain to find anything on the Prisoner to connect him with the corpus delicti, or personal contact with the deceased—no money o papers—no belt—nothing. [Counsel here illustrated this position by other cases and referred to the case quoted by the oppo-site Counsel, Mr. Butler—"R. Cherman for the murder of her child," and stated that in that case the defendant was found going with a shovel to ury her child. And proceeded]- the defendant was found going with a shovel to bury her child. And proceeded]—

Gentlemen, do you find Radeliffo going with a shovel to bury Ross; do you find with him or on him anything to connect him directly with the "corpus delicit." In that case the Judge is reported to have said "that the Jury nere and to believe as men and to doubt as Jurors." If the Judge meant by belief, that train of thought and resoning which forces the mind to a certain conclusion, I agree with him; but if he means the balance of opinion, the prependerance of our mind; if that is his meaning, I do not. A case may be so suspicious as to render the preponderance of your mind in favor of guilt; and yet you may think that there is a probability of innocence. In such a case, you are bound to give the benefit of the doubt to the prisoner.

The circumstances must be concluste in their nature and tendency—what are they? The intimacy of Hoss and Rateliffe—meyou to infer from that he nurdered Ross; does that connect him with the corpus delicit—No! We find Ross after his wife's death, about the 1st of April, going out to board, indufging freely in drinking. frequenting groceries and salcona—he was very integular at his bonding house; he used to remain away from home, staying out at nights—he was out of employment—so was Ratelift—they were both drinking men—congenial spirits, and they sought each other's company. It was asserted that Ross never sought the company of Ratchffe; but is in proof, he called on him alone on the Thursday before the murder, and they were together into the country. Yes he sought his company—they sought each others company—they were from the same country, I may say—they were from the same country, I may say—they were from the same country, I may say—they were from the same country. I may say—they were from the corpus delicit. The instrument—the boot tracks—the boots—the vest—the overoat—those are the circumstances which are to connect the defendant with the corpus delicit.

The getting the instrument made, what dess that those are the circumstances which are to connect the defendant with the corpus delict.

The getting the instrument made, what does that show? Gentlemen, the defendant is a man of common sense; he is not a fool, he is not instanche is a good mechanic, he is a blacksmith. And do you suppose that if he contemplated that marder with that instrument—he would employ another to make it—when he might easily make it himself! Gentlemen, that is not reason—it is not common sense! He would have been the last man to go to Soggs' shop, and publish it there.—But it is asked what was it made for? I dont know; we are not bound to show what it was made for; My associate says, it has been explained to him by a gentleman who has frequently seen such instruments used, at the end of spring poles—If it had been found on the ground near the murdered man, then we would have been bound to show how it came there; but there is no such testimony nan, then we would have been bound to show how it came there; but there is no such testimony here. The other point by which they seek to connect the defendant with the "corpus delicti" is this, that the wounds made on the head of the decased were made by this instrument. Can you conclusively say that these wounds were made by this instrument? I say they could not have been made by this instrument to us to direct the piece.

by the Prosecution, that he appeared exetted and anxious at Reeve's when enquiring for him there. Mr. and Mrs. Reeve's said that his conduct excited no remark. Afterwards, when their imagination became excited by conjecture; Mrs. Reeve's said she thought there was something manual. cannot divine a criminal intent. If he was seeking him out that day to slaughter him for his money, would he have gone from house to house, to proclaim his intention? Would he have publicly sought him from day to day through the streets, and he seen walking in his company? Would he not rather have secretly watched his victim, and accomplished his purpose without exciting public suspicion. If he was guilty it would seem as if he were laying plans to direct suspicion against himself. These circumstances are conclusive evidence to my mind of the Prisoners in necence.

[An interval of 5 minutes was allowed to Coun-Bunsey Again. -- The Wisconsinentifibries a part sel here, and then after having apologizing for of the excitement about the Radeliffe case, to "that on patience of the jury; and alluded to the occuliar passion for excitement which likes to see solemnity of the occasion; and referred to list of witness' names which were brought up against the prisoner, having been withheld from them &c., he proceeded.]

about 8 o'clock; we have those two facts clearly before us, we have another fact that Rateliff told Page that they went to Kellogg's saloon from his house, and that he parted with him there. Where were they from 3 to 10 o'clock; into what saloons house, and that he parted with him there. Where were they from 8 to 10 o'clock; into what saloons did they go; who saw them together, is it possible nobody has found out where they spent those 2 hours of time? I sit more probable that Ross on a visit to his mistress passed an hour or two before he started home; there is an interval! of time altogether unaccounted for which leaves this case in mystery and doubt. If they went from the house of the defendant to Grove-st, the scene of the murder, a distance of about 1½ miles, it would take about 3½ of an hour would be ample time. But if he contemplated murder, why wait till he got within 10 tods of his boarding house; why not murder him in Menomene marsh where no eye could see him—no donger of interruption there—and where he could easily have disposed of the hody in the Menomonee, and efface every vestige of the crime. Is that natural? They may argue that his heart failed him, till the last moment. How does that tally with the argument that 10 days before he made up his mind to kill him? It is inconsistent with the course of human affairs. It is unantural—I want you to necount beyond a teasonable doubt for this material of three—where were they; into whose horse did they go? where did they linger?

He is as for above the best traveling performers who have for this interval of time—where were they? into whose borse did they go? where did they linger? Jirs Th ang an says that Radeliffe was at home between 9 and 10 o'clock. It was easy to say she princed herself, but if Mr. Butler had shown where trad bow, it would have been more satisfactory.—You have seen that poor drooping woman before you—she told you the story of her misfortanes—she came into court, however, pure and misulited—does it follow that the wife possesses the infamy of the hasband? Admit the Defendant guilty.—Yet if you noticed the anguished countenance of that weeping wite of his, you must have seen parity indeed. She has shown an example of devotedness and attachment. I never witnessed before. heard, it will be no ordinary treat to those who ore. And does it follow that Mrs. Thompson is a vagaconsider a more than MRI MRI I nompoon is a vaga-bond, a wretch, a perjunc, because her husband is in jail? That woman has been dogged from the day of the murder till this time—she has been sunconded by spies in order that they might gel her to swear to some inconsistent stones. I have noversten a woman cross-examined as she has been, and still remain unshaken; she told the been, and still remain unshaken; she told the same story before the Grand Jury; the gentlemen on the other side could not make her contradict herself, and yet they branded her as a perjured witness—they held up to infamy that broken read. Yes, gentlemen, they have succeeded, they have broken it. If we did not call her, how they would have harped on it. We had confidence in her testimor, and I will show you it was true. Had she been disposed to swear to a heliow casy would it have been to testify that after Rutchif came in and went to bed she heard some one come up stairs—in order to account for he how easy would it have been to itstify that after Rateliff came in and went to bed she heard some one come up stairs—in order to account for the shirt? I asked her, was it not the usual custom of Mrs. Rateliff to put the dirty clothes away every night, and yet she would not swear to it. It is cruel to thus denounce a poor, innocent, in offensive woman. She was forced to seek werk at Mrs. Williams when her bustand was imprisoned—Mrs. Williams when her bustand was no longer a refuge—such was her humanity. She testified that when she was going to bed the clock had I can wound up—her landband went to bed and after she went upstairs to her bedroom she head Itan lifte come in, between 9 and 10. How is that sought to be impeached? Conover swore she first put it at 10 o'clock. I have no doubt he said so henestly, but he did not tell the truth. Page and White contradict him—hew do you account for this contradiction? Ull tell you—they were all very much excited, they see and hear things through a magnifying medium. So it was with Conover, and that is held up as a contradiction, which authorizes the District Attorney—this man in pantaloons—to acuse her of perjury. On the same principle, I unght denounce tho-emen as perjurers. Now, according to her oridence, he was at home between 10 and 10 g'clock, and Ross was killed between 10 and 10 g'clock, this, therefore, clear that if her evidence is true, it is imposable that he could have been at the nurder. Can you then, with this testimony say, without a doubt, that Rateliff was there, and that he was the nurderer? They say her testimony is impeached by Mrs. Williams, but you come to examine them, there is became excited by conjecture; Mrs. Recve's said she thought there was something remarkable about his conduct. Mr. Fleming is called up to prove that, when Ratcliff called at his house in the atternoon enquiting for Ross, he appeared strange, that he said: "All is right on my side, i'll set, kim once more, no more." She is not positive whether he said, "my side or his side, i'm stat do not he state on answer—they knock again, and Ratcliffe got whether he said, "my side or his side, i'm stat on the state of the might that remark? If you can, you can do more than that remark? If you can, you can do more than that remark? If you can, you can do more than that remark is all right on his side? He might have thought—he might as well have sent his side to look for him. That might be the idea. I cannot divine a criminal intent. If he was eeek-ing him out that day to elaughter him for his rabbing list eyes. Prop soid it looked remarkknow nost? Here the defendant sees 3 pair of eyes on him at once; is it remarkable then he should appear agitated under such circumstances, and that he should change color—he commenced rabbing his eyes. Page sold it looked remarkable—Mr. White, who gave his evidence most farly and impartially all through, said he looked sleepy. But Conoter saw "the devilinthe lush." THere Coursel illustrated the distorted effort produced on many minds, when under a state of acitement, by the most ordinary occurrences and laid down for the night, he who had concealed the axe, (without any previous quared or notice of his intertions,) struck the other two with the axe, cutting one of them open in the side, and wounding the other sereoly in the shoulder. Mrs. Thompson testifies that on Wednesday, Rateliffe changed his shirt, and that it was the habit of Mrs. Rateliffe to wesh on Wednesdays that there was no other dirty sher in the house from Wednesday to Sunday. This evidence is contradicted first by Mrs. Lawrence, who testifies that on Friday, she saw Rateliff in the Fireman's Saloon, and that he had on then a white shirt—and when cross examined, what did she say? She did not know what colored coat he had on—whether he had on a cap or a hat—she did not know what dress she wore herself on that day— I come now to the death and the defendants whereabouts at that time—of the facts in this case, some are clearly proved some, not; some are possible, some doubtful. Brewer, Chestnut-st., 2nd ward.

The undersigned, having corefully examined the presed roofing Thes, invented by Mr. Graenle, have found them perfectly answering the purpose intended. Their practical and argacious construction recommend this kind of This, not only as a fire-proof and perfectly water-proof covering, but above all for its durability. The ridges and channels not only exclude the entering of snow or rain-water, but, by their firm and precise joining of one into the other, they give to the single The sawell as to the whole covering an absolutely movesthe position and an intimate connection. Besides this, Mr. Graestle's method of burning the Tiles, deprive them of the injurious tendency to absorb water, making them in this way durable; and joining to the above another rirtue, sir, that of dispensing with repairs. The undersigned litersfore consider our clientally justified in recommending to the building community the above roofing The as in excellent and valuable material.

TO MAN, for Coughs, Asthum, Colds, Group, Bronchila, influenza, Blaeding, of the Lungs, Difficulty of Breathing, Lister Adections, Pain or Weakness of the Breast or Bilds, Plot Slages of Consumption, &c.

In short, this Belism is peculiarly adaptic to every disease of the Lungs and Liver, which is produced in our every disease of the Lungs and Liver, which is produced in our every disease of the Lungs and Liver, which is produced in our every disease of the Lungs and Liver, which is produced in our every matron in our land, and physicians often prescribe it in different forms for a variety of complaint. Tay, also, has been equally noted for leavistuce; and some play belans, whose names are familiar to the whole country, have gone so for as to declare that even CONSUMPTION could be cured by that alone. In other hands, again, it was nearly valueless—owing, no doubt, to their ignorance in preparing and administering it—a difficulty now entirely obristed by patient experiment and long experience.

The extraordinary medicinal powers of these two substances are now, for the first time, combined and embodied in DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. By a nice chemical process, everything deleterious or meless is rejected, so that what remains is the most extraordinary and truly efficacious remely, for all kinds of pulmonary and live dihemeaster known to man. To contine all unbelievers that our theory is really true, we refer to a few cases of curves performed by this wonderful medicine;
